

Play Strindberg by Friedrich Dürrenmatt

The Silvia Simons Theatre Company in co-production with The Intimate Theatre St Kilda, Melbourne

Directed by Silvia Simons with Guest Director Victor Kazan

Lighting by Russell Alsop
Sound by Mojo

Photography by Victor Kazan

Alice played by Silvia Simons

Edgar played by Lindsay Edwards

The Intimate Theatre St Kilda was a chamber theatre situated in a Victorian mansion in Melbourne. It provided diverse programs for more than 6 years and rapidly became known as a gem among theatre connoisseurs. It died with its owner Lindsay Edwards leaving to work in China, but it has not died in the minds and hearts of all who worked there or frequented it as members of the audience.

Kurt played by Joseph Sherman

Dürrenmatt has taken Strindberg's brooding tragedy The Dance of Death and transformed it into a brilliant black comedy.

Emory Lewis said of it: "It is a tough, sardonic, brassy and hilarious comedy of marriage. I loved every cynical minute of it". (The Record)

